

Talking to Classmates

You respond back in broken Chinese, not even sure if you answered her question, blushing immediately.

What do you do next?

Continue chatting with them

Say you have to go before you die of embarrassment

Talking to Classmates

A girl steps in and says, "My name is Sheng, my English is fairly good out of the class. I can help you translate."

You politely reply, "Great, thank you!"

You are bombarded by questions from classmates: "Are Americans all loud?" "Do you regret not learning Chinese?"

What do you think of their questions to you?

Answer their questions

Kind of offending.. You don't want to keep socializing with them